Railroad Rajahs 10 Billions in Sight Dangerous Scrapping Archimedes and Joe

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1928, by Star Co.

EASTERN RAILROADS, with Government's permission and the public's blessing, will combine various systems into one big system, making possible greater efficiency and greater economies. Freight will not be hauled over mountains when it might go along level ground. And employes will cease wasting time trying to divert freight to their railroad from some other railroad.

Some railroad presidents may not like it. The Indian rajahs didn't like being united under British control. But they were reconciled when they found themselves just as prosperous as ever and much safer.

Walter Parker, who knows, tells the Foreign Trade convention at Houston that this country will some day do a business of ten billions a year with our Latin-American neighbors on the south.

Uncle Sam has the billions for building up the trade, but to get it and keep it we should imitate Britain and Germany. They send young men to learn the methods of foreign countries. To rely on "go-getter" high-power salesmanship is silly.

Also we ought to select our consuls for what they know about business in foreign countries—not for what they know about politics at home.

In Ohio, where coal miners are striking, Prosecutor Paul V. Waddell is quoted as follows: "We have to imitate some of Russia's methods and forget what we learned in school about the Constitution."

In other words, according to the public prosecutor, it has been necessary to "scrap free speech guarantees." If you let men talk they will do what you don't want. The simplest thing is to prevent their talking.

That was done in Russia long before bolshevism took charge. The czars, in the long run, found that it didn't pay.

Mine owners may learn, eventually, that writers of the Constitution knew what was good for this country. They were not Bolsheviki; far from it, and included conservative rich men.

Mention to 1,000,000 Americans at random three names, Archimedes, Descartes, Joe Wolcott, and 10 will know Joe Wolcott for every one acquainted with the other two.

Thirty years ago Joe Wolcott had crowds following him. He was called "The Giant Killer," "The Barbados Demon," "The Black Cyclone," and the welterweight champion of the world. The greatest heavyweights had to think up good excuses for not meeting him.

Now Joe Wolcott, a shrunken, round-shouldered, small-sized colored man, dressed in a porter's uniform, opens the side door of a theatre in New York to let the audience out when the show is over.

HIS show is over.

Less profitable, but better on the whole, to be Archimedes.

Chicago's crime commission named three judges of the Criminal Court, accusing them of being in partnership with criminals and supplying unpleasantly convincing proof.

When politicians share the profits of criminals, including race track and prize ring criminals, and when the same politicians are able to put their men on the bench, you can't expect very "high grade justice."

The Hoover campaign seems cheerful. At a New York dinner of the Republican Club, nearly all Republican delegates to the

20 Firemen Injured at South Boston

4 ALARMS FOR BLAZE IN CAN FACTORY; ACID FUMES INJURE MANY

Twenty firemen were injured or overcome, one probably fatally, and damage estimated at more than $250,000 was caused today in a four-alarm fire that raged for hours in the six-story plant of the Colonial Can Company, Pittsburgh st., South Boston.

Fumes of muriatic acid temporarily blinded two firemen and forced many others to seek treatment at a hastily established first-aid station.

Huge tin presses on the top floor of the flaming structure endangered the lives of all the firefighters and one of these, weighing more than a ton, fell through several floors.

Ladderman Carl Carlson fell 30 feet from a ladder and fractured his spine. He was rushed to Haymarket Relief Hospital. He is 32 years old and lives on Minot st., Dorchester.

With all available apparatus on hand, aerial ladders were shot up on all sides of the building and tons of water poured on the flames from 40 hose lines, but it was three hours and a half before the fire was under control.

Sagging floors, the danger from the big presses on the sixth floor and the acid fumes even then made it dangerous to penetrate the ruined interior.

BREMEN FLIERS ON WAY TO N. Y. BY TRAIN AFTER TRIBUTES TO BENNETT

Washington, April 28 (AP)—The crew of the Bremen, which came here last night to lay wreaths and flags they brought across the Atlantic on the grave of Floyd Bennett, paid their tribute today and left Washington by train for New York. They departed at 1:05 p. m. in a special car attached to a Pennsylvania railroad train.

Rainy weather prevented the fliers from returning to New York by airplane, as they hoped to do. They held out until the last in a determination to fly, but shortly after noon they conceded that this would be impracticable.

The aviators went to Arlington National Cemetery early and participated in a simple ceremony at the grave of their fellow airman, who succumbed to illness contracted while flying to their aid at Greenly Island.

First Capt. Herman Koehl placed a wreath of green on the fresh earthen mound, which was already completely covered by floral tributes. Then Baron Von Huenefeld went slowly forward and unfolded the flag of his country, to top the wreath of his companion.

He was followed by Major James Fitzmaurice, who lifted a huge silken emblem of green, white and orange. His Irish flag alike was spread sidewise over Bennett's resting place.

Finally Major Howard Williams, commandant at Rolling Field, produced a smaller emblem of the Stars and Stripes, which he put beside the Irish flag.

The fliers were accompanied to Arlington by Miss Herta Junkers,

ACTRESSES DIE IN LOVE PACT ON MOSCOW STAGE

Moscow, April 28 (AP)—Agnessa Koreliva and Natalie Alexeeva, beautiful ballet artistes, both aged 20, gave tragic touch to the Inter-revolutionary ballet called "Red Poppy" when they plunged to death from the uppermost tiers of the stage in full view of the public and just as the curtain was about to fall.

Both girls, their hands tied, crashed in mid-stage just as the thunderous revolutionary hymn, the "Internationale," was struck up by the orchestra.

Fellow artists who knew the girls intimately expressed belief that the ballet dancers had formed a suicide pact growing out of an unusual romance. They said that the girls had fallen in love with a scenery painter, Kurilko, who lately has become renowned for his art.

Devoted to each other and yet both desperately in love with the painter, it was thought that they preferred a common death as the best way out of the situation.

The ballet is replete with revolutionary heroic exploits, and to the spectators at a distance, who had

SHOT FIRED IN FURIOUS NORTH STATION BATTLE

A thrilling, hand-to-hand struggle between an officer and his prisoner, in which one shot was fired, was staged before a large throng of commuters in North station today, throwing the concourse into confusion.

The prisoner, Edward Sisk of L st., South Boston, who had made a break for liberty, was clubbed into submission with the butt of a revolver by Officer Arthur J. Mahoney of the State Department of Corrections, and then taken to Haymarket Relief Hospital.

Sisk, arrested for violation of his parole, was being taken back to Concord Reformatory by Mahoney, to whom he was handcuffed. As the two men entered the concourse opposite Track 5, Sisk kicked Ma-

STORM SWEEPS COAST OF N. E.; 2 HURT IN HUB

A northeast storm of rain, snow and sleet swept the New England coast today, causing heavy damage to shipping and other property and resulting in injuries to at least two persons in Boston.

Two boats were blown ashore at South Boston. In Dorchester the high wind blew down the tower of a coal hoist, hurling two men 40 feet to the ground. Both were but slightly hurt.

COMPSTON DEFEATS HAGEN IN GOLF TILT

Moor Park, England, April 28 (AP)—Playing phenomenal golf, Archie Compston, British professional, conquered Walter Hagen in their 72-hole match for £750, beating him on the first hole of their fourth round today, 18 up and 17 to play.

Compston, after his magnificent playing of yesterday on the first 36 holes, which left him 14 up, resumed his winning stride this morning, and at the end of the third round was 18 up. Going into the fourth round, he needed only a half, and this he got, the 56th hole being halved in fours.

Hagen's doom was made certain this morning when Compston picked up four more holes on him. Nevertheless he went to the practice green after lunch with a new putter and tried to run down long ones until

'L' TRAFFIC IN WORST SNARL IN YEARS IN RAIN

At the height of the rush hour today, with the rain falling in torrents, an outbound trolley train, jammed with passengers, left the rails near the Arlington station of the Boylston st. tube, and tied up traffic in the worst snarl of years.

The derailed train blocked both inbound and outbound tracks, tying up cars throughout the entire circuit, and setting thousands of commuters afoot in the storm.

Hundreds of passengers, many of them women and girls, walked in through the tube from Massachus daughter of the builder of the Bremen. Before going to the cemetery they posed for photographers in front of the commandant's quarters at Bolling Field.

The fliers were determined to pay their tribute to Bennett before any sort of a reception of a formal nature was tendered to them.

For this reason they kept themselves in seclusion throughout the night and up to the time of their visit to Arlington.

The American flag placed on Bennett's grave was brought across the Atlantic on the Bremen. Miss Junkers placed a wreath of green on the mound as her token to the dead airman.

Throughout the ceremony the fliers stood with heads bowed in the rain. Each was asked to say something for the microphone, but expressed a preference not to do so.

POSE FOR CAMERAMEN.

After leaving Bennett's burial place the group visited the grave of Lieut. Wooster, who lost his life in the disaster to the American Legion plane, which crashed in trials made in preparation for an attempt to span the Atlantic.

The fliers were awake long before Washington had taken on its customary activities. They found photographers and newspapermen camping on the doorsteps of the officers' quarters at Bolling Field, where they had been guests for the night.

In turn, each of them posed for sitting portraits. The first to do so was Capt. Koehl, who laughed good-naturedly.

"If you take so many pictures of me," he said, "this rain will never stop."

Then came Fitzmaurice, who apparently posed reluctantly. He was still wearing the red woolen jacket which had warmed him on the Bremen trip, and had on the high rubber boots which had helped him among the snowdrifts of Greenly Island.

Baron von Huenefeld was the last to pose. He had his inevitable monocle stuck jauntily in his right eye. He refused to keep still or smile unless allowed to smoke. The photographers assented with alacrity.

The journey to Arlington was made during a rain which at times became driving. The weather conditions were similar to those which prevailed yesterday during the burial of Bennett with military honors.

RECOGNIZED BY FEW.

Few on the streets knew the exact hour the German-Irish pilgrimage would pass, and of those hardly a handful recognized the short caravan of army cars which sped down Pennsylvania ave.

Upon their return to Bolling Field Capt. Koehl asked for a map of air routes to New York. He was said to be considering flying there with his companions, despite the unfavorable weather.

On the return trip to the field Von Huenefeld and Koehl stopped off at a men's clothing store to do some shopping to reinforce their limited wardrobes. The Germans were still wearing the same clothes in which they had flown the Atlantic, and these had taken on a rough and ready appearance.

Their purchases included shirts and neckties.

Storm Drives Balchen and Plane Back to N. Y.

Miller Field, Staten Island, N. Y., April 28 (INS)—The Ford plane piloted by Bernt Balchen, which set out from Curtiss Field at 8:30 today for Washington to pick up the Bremen fliers, landed here a short time later, forced by bad weather to abandon the flight for the day.

Balchen had only one passenger in the plane with him, Charles Wendel, a Ford mechanic.

The plane passed over Staten Island at 9 o'clock enroute to Washington. When Balchen reached a point over New Jersey, he found fog and rain conditions so bad he could not proceed without great danger to the plane, so he decided to turn back, brought the plane down on Miller Field without difficulty.

Polish Fliers, Planning Ocean Hop, Forced Down

Abbeville, France, April 28 (AP)—Maj. Louis Idzikowski and Maj. Casimir Kubala, Polish aviators, preparing for a transatlantic flight, landed at Forest Monfiers, near the village of Rue, at 2 p. m. today.

They had taken off from Le Bourget at 6:30 on what was described as a test flight, although there were rumors they might continue in an effort to reach New York by way of the Azores.

The fliers landed because of radiator trouble. One tire burst on landing. The men plan to fly to Villacoublay, near Paris, tomorrow to have their engine given a final tuning on Monday.

Rue is about 15 miles from Abbeville and 160 miles north of Paris.

"Duke" Schiller Reported Flying to New York

Mitchel Field, N. Y., April 28 (INS)—Word received here today reported "Duke" Schiller, Canadian aviator who flew to the stranded Bremen on dismal Greenly Island, is in the air enroute from Murray Bay, Quebec, to New York.

Army authorities at the field are planning a rousing reception for the Canadian flier. It is expected that Schiller, too, will take a prominent place in the spotlight of the city's reception to the conquerors of the Atlantic.

20 MEN HURT; 40 HOSE LINES QUENCH FLAMES

Everywhere streets and cellars were flooded, window glass was blown out and minor accidents, endangering lives, occurred.

The storm was the same disturbance which moved up the Atlantic coastline from Florida, causing hundreds of thousands in damage throughout the South and leaving an average of s foot of snow in Virginia, Pennsylvania and Maryland.

More than an inch of precipitation was recorded here before noon and at least another inch would fall before the storm swept on, the weatherman predicted.

On a lea shore in South Boston, less than a half-mile apart, the 35-foot ketch Houqua and the 36 foot sloop Gulmore piled upon the pebbly beach. The Houqua, owned by Alexander W. Moffat of Brookline, chaffed her mooring and broke loose from her anchorage 500 yards off the Boston Yacht Club. She drove ashore high and dry.

ASHORE NEAR HEADHOUSE.

Gulmare went ashore near a pier leading from the Headhouse and was in some danger of opening her seams.

At the D. J. Cutter Coal Co wharf, 420 Freeport st., Dorchester, Michael Gibbons and Dennis Cowheney narrowly escaped death when the 40-foot tower, from which they were directing the operations of a coal hoist, was blown over. Both leaped clear of the pilot house just before it hit the ground. They were cut and bruised and taken to their homes.

From the top of the Edison Building, Boylston st., a heavy ventilator "cap" was torn from its hinges by the gale and dropped into the alley between the building and Hotel Brewster. But the narrow margin of a single foot it missed crashing through the top of a parked car.

SNOW IN NORTHERN N. E.

The rain which began shortly before midnight turned to sleet in Greater Boston during the early morning hours, changing back to rain again shortly before dawn. In northern New England, however, the precipitation was mostly snow and a heavy fall was expected in Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

Three inches fell during the night at Concord, N. H.

In the face of increasing gales predicted for this afternoon and tonight, storm warnings were flown from Delaware capes to Eastport.

Forecast: Rain this afternoon and tonight, continued cold; Sunday, cloudy with slowly rising temperature. Strong northeast shifting to northwest winds, with gales on the coast.

22 Inches of Snow Fell in West Virginia

Pittsburgh, April 28 (AP)—Radio today was the only means of communication with several cities and cities in Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Maryland because of a heavy snowfall that broke down wires.

Motorists were snowbound on the highways between Uniontown and the Maryland state line. The snowfall was the heaviest in many years for April. From 12 to 18 inches fell in parts of Pennsylvania. Trains were hours late.

Twenty-two inches of snow fell in parts of Southern West Virginia. At Kayford, the depth of the snow blanket was 22 inches, while across the state line in Keyser, Cumberville reported a depth of 18 inches.

Three Drowned in Storm at Atlantic City, N. J.

Atlantic City, N. J., April 28 (INS)—Three men were drowned and four saved when the river steamer South Shore drifted onto the beach here during the storm today. The steamer was being towed from New York to Bridgeton when the line was either parted or was cut by the tug's crew during a heavy gale.

MALDEN MAN BLINDED AT WORK IN CAMBRIDGE

Potash flying into his eyes blinded John Harrington of Gates st., Malden, today, as he was cleaning pipes in a basement on Massachusetts ave., Cambridge. He may lose the sight of one eye permanently. He was taken to Cambridge hospital.

By frantic efforts, in the face of difficulties, the firemen under command of Acting Chief Henry Fox prevented the flames from spreading to the Sherwin-Williams Paint Co., across the street, and the furniture storage warehouse of Francis Fitz adjoining the can plant.

Had the paint building ignited the entire warehouse district would have been endangered. The heavy downpour of rain, whipped almost horizontal by a gale from the harbor, helped confine the flames to the can factory.

RESORT TO GAS MASKS.

Scores of spectators braved the drenching downpour to watch firemen struggle to overcome the flames. After being repulsed by the dangerous acid fumes they donned gas masks and dared the threat of falling presses to get at the fire.

Firemen overcome or injured were assisted out by their comrades, the outstanding rescues being those of John Morgan, engine 38, of Fuller st., Dorchester, and Carl Sampson of engine 38, of Columbia rd., both of whom were hauled by the flames from the acid containers on the third floor.

FIRST AID STATION

A first-aid station was established in a nearby fire station by Dr. John B. Leech of the City Hospital staff and many firemen were treated for minor injuries that were not recorded, all returning to the blazing building until relieved by the day shift just as the fire was put under control.

The cause of the fire could not be determined until an investigation of the interior could be made.

Credit was given William Ticha of tower 3, who discovered the fire, for helping to save the district from a conflagration. On duty at the desk in the Pittsburgh st. fire station, he saw the flames shooting from the floor windows and gave the alarm, which was followed in rapid succession by three more alarms.

Acting Chief Fox estimated the damage to the building at $50,000, while officials of the occupying company said the probable damage to building, stock and equipment was $250,000 or more.

About 125 employes are temporarily out of work as a result of the fire, most of them arriving for work to find the building a flaming mass.

Salvation Army workers supplied doughnuts and coffee to firemen and policemen during the long battle with the flames.

H. B. Campbell, an officer of the concern, said he was at a loss to account for the fire because the plant was filled chiefly with iron machinery and tin. He said the damages to building and machinery was covere' by insurance.

The flames raced over the entire four upper floors and there was a large water damage on the lower floors. The basement was flooded.

N. Y. WILL GIVE BIG WELCOME TO FLIERS

New York, April 28—New York's official welcome to three gallant airmen who flew across the Atlantic from Ireland was to start today with all the pent-up enthusiasm of a long delayed celebration.

It was to be a stirring prelude to public honor that is to come Monday with a parade from the Battery to Central Park, and the following night, when 3000 guests gather at the city's banquet in the Commodore Hotel.

Awaiting the fliers when they arrived from Washington this afternoon were to be Mayor Walker, Grover A. Whalen, chairman, and members of his reception committee; representatives of the Irish Free State and the leading German, American and Irish-American societies, Nassau County, government and army officials.

WILL HAVE DAY OF REST.

With them also was to be Dr. F. E. Fellows, quarantine officers, who will make the required examinations of Baron Von Huenefeld, Capt. Koehl and Mai Fitzmaurice.

It was planned to have the aviators enter waiting automobiles at Mitchell Field—if they came by plane—and parade the entire length of the field. The party then was to go to the field operations office, where the three airmen will broadcast briefly over a hook-up of the Columbia Broadcasting Company, including stations WEAF, WJZ and WNYC.

From the field the party was to proceed to the Ritz-Carlton Hotel in New York, where they will be quartered during their stay here.

Tomorrow the fliers will obtain a much-needed rest and prepare for the public reception Monday.

Whalen said today that because the three men probably were greatly fatigued by the hardships of their adventures, no appointments had been made for tonight or tomorrow. If the fliers express a desire to go to the theater tonight, however, a party is to be arranged for them.

10,000 WILL PARADE

Monday morning at 10:15 they will leave the Ritz-Carlton and be taken down the harbor by the city tug Macom. They are to be accompanied by Mrs. Fitzmaurice and Mrs. Koehl, if the wives arrive on the North German Lloyd liner Dresden in time to be taken off at quarantine. The Dresden is due early Monday.

The Macom is to proceed down the bay through lines of flag-draped shipping as far as the Statute of Liberty, where it will turn around and make for Pier A at the Battery.

Meanwhile, 10,000 troops under the leadership of Grand Marshal Brig. Gen. Otto B. Rosenbloom, will have moved from their assembly point at the Battery up Broadway and the airmen will follow in the rear of the parade.

Overhead twelve army airplanes and four from the navy will circle.

The parade will pass in review before the mayor and invited dignitaries on the steps of City Hall.

The fliers will be presented to the mayor, who will extend to them the city's official welcome. Maj.-Gen. William N. Haskell, of the National Guard, representing Governor Smith, will decorate each of them with the state medal of honor.

"Pat" Fitzmaurice Will Be "Queen of May" in N. Y.

New York, April 28 (AP)—Eight-year-old Patricia Fitzmaurice is to be New York's Queen of the May.

Patricia, who is the daughter of Major James Fitzmaurice of the Bremen crew, accepted the invitation of Louis I. Harris, commissioner of health, in a radio message from the liner Dresden, aboard which she is coming to this country with her mother.

"Happy to accept invitation unless previous engagements prevent," radioed "Patsy" as she signed her answer. The festival is an annual affair conducted by the Health Department in Central Park.

REBUKE BLEASE IN AWARDS TO OCEAN FLIERS

Blease, Democrat, of South Carolina, had created some commotion by objecting to "this hero worship which I think has gone far enough."

The cross would be awarded to Capt. Herman Koehl, Maj. James Fitzmaurice and Baron von Huenefeld of the Bremen, Dieudonne and Joseph Lebris, the Frenchmen, who crossed the South Atlantic and came to this country, and to Francesco di Pinedo, the Italian aviator, who followed a similar course.

Senator Robinson, Democrat, Arkansas, described the flights as among the most inspiring achievements in recent history, and expressed keen regret at the objection raised by Blease.

The South Carolinian explained that he wanted recognition awarded American soldiers who had been cited for bravery, but who had not received their citations because of decisions of Congress and the administration.

BROWN SENIOR IS HELD IN AUTO DEATH

East Providence, R. I., April 28 (AP)—Edward E. Hart of New York City, a senior at Brown University, was held for manslaughter early today after a machine he was driving struck and instantly killed Oscar R. Adams of 1351 South Broadway, East side. Thomas L. Jones of Ivy, Ky., a Brown senior and president-manager of the Brown Musical Clubs, and Neil R. McLeod of Manclair, N. J., a special student at Brown, had been to a Brown musical club performance at East Douglas, Mass., and were on their way to the Rhode Island Country Club at Barrington to play for dancing.

BOYS APOLOGIZE TO JUDGE; ESCAPE WITH LECTURE

Admitting having lied to the judge a few days ago, two 14-year-old South Boston boys today were given a chance to apologize by Judge Edward L. They were witnesses in a case against a South Boston man who, in spite of their denials that he had sold them wine, was found guilty and sentenced to a fine and House of Correction sentence.

Lindy's Air Record 7000 Passengers, 200,000 Miles

Washington, April 28 (INS)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh has flown more than 200,000 miles, or a distance about eight times around the world, during his flying career.

In applying today to the Commerce Department for a renewal of his transport license, Lindbergh declared he had spent 2520 hours in the air, had made 7800 flights and had carried 7000 passengers.

not heard the agonized cry of the dancers drowned as it was in the thunderous music, the leap seemed like a startling stage feat effected with dummies.

To the corps de ballet, however, who at that moment came from the wings advancing to mid-stage in a dance of revolutionary triumph, the tragedy was only too apparent in all its gruesome aspects. Before their eyes lay the two girl friends, the one dead and the other just breathing.

The curtain fell immediately hiding from the audience the panic and tears of the ballerinas.

The police authorities immediately began in investigation into the deaths.

The theatrical manager advanced the theory that a suicide pact had been agreed upon by the girls growing out of circumstances not yet ascertained, but fellow artists were convinced that the girls' mutual romance with the painter was the actual reason for their self-destruction.

While startled men and women commuters hustled in their rush to trains, the two men swayed up and down the platform, locked in a close embrace. Suddenly Mahoney freed one hand, and brought the butt of his gun down on the point of Sisk's chin. The gun was discharged as he did so, the bullet going into the air.

Mahoney attended strictly to business, however, wielding the gun butt again and again until Sisk was subdued. In fact, he was nearly unconscious, with cuts on his cheek, over one eye and the head. After being treated at the hospital, he was taken back to the station by Mahoney and the pair caught the next train for Concord.

FILL CHURCH AT FITZGERALD WEDDING

Many prominent Bostonians today attended the wedding of John F. Fitzgerald, Jr., son of the former mayor, and Miss Catherine D. O'Hearn, which was solemnized at St. Ambrose's Church, Fields Corner.

The church was thronged with friends of the couple. Rev. John H. Harrigan, the pastor, performed the ceremony and was celebrant of a solemn high mass, assisted by Rev. Dennis J. Maguire, deacon, and Rev. Joseph P. Murphy of Arlington, subdeacon, with Rev. John J. Morrissey, master of ceremonies.

There were 500 guests at a reception at the Copley-Plaza following the church services.

The bride, who is the daughter of the late Patrick O'Hearn, former Boston building commissioner, was given in marriage by her brother, John F. O'Hearn. Miss Mary O'Hearn, her sister, was maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were Mrs. John O'Hearn, Mrs. Edward Morrissey, Miss Alice Brine, Miss Josephine O'Connell, Miss Mary Lyons and Miss Mary Doherty.

Mrs. Fitzgerald is a graduate of Notre Dame, class of 1928, having been president of her class. The groom is a graduate of Dorchester high school and Huntington school and also attended Georgetown University.

CHEERS FOR TRIO MINGLE WITH DEEP GRIEF FOR HERO

Photo shows the reception accorded the heroes of the Bremen flight and the daring girl who went to their rescue when they reached Washington, which was bowed in grief over the death of Floyd Bennett. Koehl, Fitzmaurice, Von Huenefeld and Herta Junkers in the office of stationmaster at Washington acknowledging plaudits of multitude.

Photo shows the manner in which the fliers were received by New York when the Ford relief plane swooped gracefully down on Curtiss Field. Thousands swarmed about them. Note the mothers with babes in arms, who had stood patiently for hours, rushing to greet the heroes of the Bremen. The crowd was so great that the Ford plane was entirely surrounded and for a time its safety was feared for. But it was not damaged.

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN
BOSTON, SATURDAY, APRIL 28, 1928

In both New York and Washington the fliers were given hearty receptions. Today they visited Bennett's grave and placed a wreath there and then they went back to New York by train because of inclement weather. They were to be the official guests of the city. Mrs. Fitzmaurice and Mrs. Koehl are due in New York Monday.

Hermann Koehl, pilot of the Bremen, tell episodes of their perilous flight, while Maj. Fitzmaurice, Irish ace, and Baron von Huenefeld, backer of the flight, looked smilingly on.

Just a week after he had set out to bring aid to the Bremen fliers stranded on ice-bound Greenly Island, Floyd Bennett came home for the last time. This photo shows the funeral cortege entering Pennsylvania terminal in New York where it was placed on a special train.

A hero's body reaches the end of the path to glory. Photo shows the arrival in Washington of the body of Floyd Bennett, whom a nation honored at the grave as it has honored few men. Note men standing uncovered as casket is borne through Union Station, Washington. Vast throngs honored it along the line of march to the grave, while a multitude waited in the rain at Arlington National Cemetery.

The mother who gave Floyd Bennett to the nation was aboard the funeral train that carried him to a last resting place amongst the country's greatest. She is shown at the grave.

CAREFREE SOCIETY ON WAY ABROAD

SPONSORS FOR THE CHRISTOPHER SHOP ARE ARRANGING ROOMS AT THE HOME BEA UTIFUL EXPOSITION

HOW PROSAIC A THING, JUDGED BY ITS SURFACE, IS THE PASSENGER LIST OF a transatlantic liner. Merely columns and columns of printed names. Simply notification that Mr and Mrs. This and Mr. and Mrs. That are sailing the deep blue sea on this or that liner. But, dig below the surface a bit, and what magical pictures of carefree, globe-trotting certain names can conjure up. The names of Mr. and Mrs Frederick R. Sears, Jr., of Beacon st., for example: or that of Mrs Jacob B. Rogers, of Berkeley st., or Mrs. Nelson Bartlett of Milton, Mrs Ralph Emerson, also of Milton, all of whom are passengers on the steamship Ile de France sailing from New York last night at midnight.

THE NAME OF MRS. ROGERS ON THE ILE DE FRANCE passenger list conjures up a merry picture of the gay rendezvous she is to make, in Paris, with certain Bostonians. Their paths and hers cross in that beautiful city by the Seine. There she'll meet Mr and Mrs. Charles Fanning Ayer, who sail tomorrow and also the Robert Winthrops. Mr and Mrs. Robert Winthrop (Theodora Ayer) sailed in the midweek on their honeymoon journey, and are the son-in-law and daughter of the Charles F. Ayers Mrs. Rogers also plans to meet in Paris the Nathaniel F. Emmonses of Hingham, who sailed a week or so ago

THE NAMES OF MR. AND MRS. FREDERICK R. SEARS, Jr., on any passenger list can, to even the least imaginative, paint mind pictures of world travels. Mr. Sears and his beautiful wife (she was Miss Norma Fontaine) go globe trotting when ever and wherever fancy takes them Paris, London Vienna or Cairo are just around the corner, and they have friends and interests in cities everywhere over the globe. Shanghai or Buenos Aires might possibly be, and very probably are on their present itinerary. That's the world-girdling manner of their progress as a usual thing Philip S. Dalton is a Bostonian aboard the Ile de France. So is Mrs Louis Curtis of Commonwealth ave., whose transatlantic crossings are as regular as the season's coming.

OTHER SOCIALLY CONSEQUENTIAL ONES aboard the liner moving with majestic rhythm over the ocean toward Havre are Mrs. Nelson S Bartlett of Wellesley, with Miss Mary Hunnewell, Mrs Henry Brooks of Milton, Miss Marie S. Gookin and Mrs. Ralph Emerson, who also hail from Milton, the suburb that is as smart as it is exclusive and pleasant. Of Paris, but a recent visitor here-abouts, A. Ferdinand Bony is one of the Ile de France passenger list, one whose name imbues the list with a very special interest.

BUSY AS BEES ARE THE COHORTS OF THE Christopher Shop. And well may they be! Because they have on their hands two stupendous tasks. They put on two fashion pageants at the Home Beautiful show next week in Mechanics Hall, and they also are causing to be set up as a part of the exposition a suite of rooms as perfect in detail as they are inspirational in expression. Perhaps the most ambitious effort in the way of "rooms" is an early American dining room sponsored by William H. Mayo. It fairly exudes "atmosphere" with its mellow, time worn beauty and ancient perfections. Hand hewn beams and old paneling, a wide fireplace and pewter are but details in this delightful "room"

COURTRIGHT HOUSE, RICHLY ENDOWED with foreign antiques, is doing a Spanish reception room. Mrs Horace Morison is arranging a "kitchen" that is a model in every way, with modern latic conveniences allied to old world appreciation of color and homeliness. There is a nursery, fresh as a breath of spring itself, having Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller's sponsorship and being the last word in baby luxury for the family's lordling. Miss Mary Frances Hoffman shows adroitly what may be done, if one has vision, with the otherwise unsightly "attic," to make it a thing of beauty and a joy to possess.

IN NUMBERS THE ROOMS REALLY RUN MORE to a mansion than merely a "suite." Mrs George Richmond Fearing does a Georgian drawing room; Miss Delores de Pierrefeu, a Louis 15th sitting room; Mrs. William Duguid, a laundry and maid's sitting room; Mrs. Ernst M. Parsons oversees the construction of a "Sun Terrace," and Mrs. David R. Sigourney does a Provincial room; Mrs. Eliot Spalding does a bathroom not only of the moment, but so modernistic as to be ahead of the time in its arrangement of detail and coloring. Of course prominent firms have been called upon, and have responded willingly with contributions of rugs, furnishings, walls, ceilings, lights, and the thousand and one things necessary to furnish to perfect a whole.

THE AUGUSTUS F. GOODWINS, WHO HAVE been doing an Aiken season, have concluded their winter and early spring stay in the salubrious South Carolinean resort and are back in town again. Their return was only a day or two ago, but already Mr Goodwin has been bombarded with questions from those sports-loving persons who desire to know when the Goodwin private race track at Hamilton will be completed and in perfect trim for an inaugural meet. The sporting fraternity is keenly alert to this occasion. Mr. Goodwin's interest in polo and racing is of a solidly substantial sort. And so his building of a private race track at his extensive Hamilton estate is quite in keeping.

YOUR MERE RACEGOER, ON RECREATION bent, hails with delight the addition of a "Goodwin" day to a "Macomber" day and two "Country Club" days of racing. How much more enthusiastically will the polo playing, riding and hunting coteries welcome such an addition to the calendar of brilliant sport hereabouts. Mr. Goodwin's many broad acres at Hamilton, right in the heart of the hunting country, are ideal setting, a perfect lay of land for a perfect race course. And, of course, anything that Mr. Goodwin builds will be the superlative sort. Just as the inaugural, when it comes, will be superlative also.

LOVELY AND INTERESTING NUMBERS AS background for dancing sprites are arranged for the "Review of Dance" at the Repertory Theater, May 18, when the annual Braggiotti-Denishawn affair goes on Names poetically significant have been given some of the numbers. There is one called "In a Mushroom Glen," and another, "In a California Orange Grove," and some of the tiniest dancers of them all will be "Candles" in a "Christmas" scene. Little girl dancers are "Frost Fairies," and one is a "Flame." To their more sophisticated elders go parts in an ambitious number called "Visions of Fashionable Playgrounds."

One of the hats was presented to Comdr. MacMillan, now in the Far North, a second to "Big Bill" Thompson, who inspected a fishing schooner when he was in Boston recently, and the third went to Comdr. Donald McDonald, Jr., in charge of Station WJAZ, who is well known in Gloucester.

TAXI STRUCK BY BUS AND RINGS FIRE ALARM

One woman was cut severely and a number of other persons shaken up when a taxicab operated by F. C Cardaret was sideswiped by a heavily loaded bus on Harvard st., near Norfolk st., Cambridge, today and swung against a telegraph pole.

Ruth Watson was badly cut by flying glass and was taken to the Cambridge City Hospital.

The taxicab in colliding with the pole ripped off Box 23, sounding the alarm to which the fire department responded.

According to the police, Cardaret, with Miss Watson as a passenger, was proceeding along Harvard st. when the bus, operated by Ralph K. Thompson, approached from the opposite direction.

The bus was filled with passengers, said to have been on their way from Boston to Fitchburg.

The injured woman said she was Ruth Watson of 17 East 99th st., New York city, who had been attending a lecture at Radcliffe College and was on her way back to the Copley-Plaza. She planned to take the 1 o'clock train to New York.

7000 CHILDREN IN HUB RALLY FOR SAFETY

More than 7000 children representing schools and playgrounds of Eastern Massachusetts gathered in the Boston Arena today to take part in exercises of the fourth annual spring rally of the Junior Safety Councils.

The affair was sponsored by the Boston Lions' Club. Governor Alvan T. Fuller was the guest of honor.

Following the assembly call by Boy Scout buglers the rally was officially opened when the House of the Angel Guardian Band, led by LeRoy S. Kentfield of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, played "The Stars And Stripes Forever." The pupils of the Julia Ward Howe school district of Roxbury then took part in the formation of the word "Safety."

Mass singing of safety and patriotic songs followed.

A pageant, "Safety for All," written by Miss Mary A. McCarthy, and presented by the pupils of the Longfellow school of Roslindale, was a feature.

Another feature was the crowning of little Margaret Sprissler of the Mission Hill Playground as Queen of the May. A May pole dance staged by the playground children followed the coronation. Francis Sprissler, brother of the queen, was king.

Members of the Boston Council of Camp Fire Girls under direction of Capt. Jack Wallace of the Metropolitan Chapter of the American Red Cross gave a demonstration of the prone pressure method of resuscitation used in cases of drowning, asphyxiation and electric shock.

The rally closed with the entire gathering singing the "Star Spangled Banner," accompanied by the House of the Angel Guardian band.

The two will go to Europe as guests of the steamship lines, first class, and will be accorded similar privileges on the first boats of the lines returning to New York.

WRECK TIES UP 'L' TRAFFIC

seats ave. to Park st., while others went to the surface, where some were fortunate enough to obtain taxicabs or jitts in passing automobiles.

In a short time a long line of stalled trolleys extended through the subway from Arlington station to Kenmore sq., and out Commonwealth ave. In the opposite direction the tieup reached to Park sq., where cars were diverted out the old Tremont st. subway to Broadway, where commuters were discharged in the rain, to make their way downtown.

Throngs of drenched commuters splashed through the streets to their places of business, all of them arriving late.

Because of the nature of the block, the Elevated wrecking crews found it difficult to reach the scene, and replace the derailed cars on the tracks, with the result that the tieup lasted for nearly an hour.

Because of the excitement incident to the tieup, Mrs. Mary Doyle of 70 Lawrence ave., Charlestown, collapsed on a trolley at the Broadway entrance to the Tremont st. subway. She was taken to Massachusetts General Hospital, where she was found to be suffering from heart trouble.

POISON DEATH MYSTERY IN HOLLYWOOD

Hollywood, Cal., April 28 (INS)—A Hollywood poison mystery, with its victim believed to be the son of a wealthy New York society matron and whose fiancee lives in New York, confronted police today.

The man, 35 years old, well dressed and partly identified as "Lawrence," died today.

Identification was based on a note found in his pocket. It was signed "Nesta" and contained the address, 144 West 57 st., New York.

The letter, in part, read:

"Dear Lawrence—Mother giving another party at the Ritz-Carlton. Bahdah sent a letter from San Francisco. What is he doing there, do you know?"

The man, semi-conscious, was found shortly after midnight in front of the residence of W. H. Clifford, prominent scenario writer, in the exclusive Beachwood drive district. Mrs. Clifford, returning from a theater party, saw the man and telephoned police.

Police believed he was intoxicated. A few hours later Sergt. J. A. Smith discovered the man in convulsions. Smith ordered the prisoner removed to the Emergency Hospital, but he died en route.

Marks of identification had been removed from his clothing.

An autopsy was ordered when police expressed the belief he had been a victim of drugs or poison liquor at a Hollywood party. No mark of violence was found on the body.

Viva La Compagnie!

Nothing ritzi about Mitzi. The vivacious little star of "The Madcap," at the Shubert, shares her dressing room with her cues and she is never visited by that bogey, "the dressing room blues."

STAGE AND SCREEN

Aha, a Trade Secret?

When the Fiske-Skinner-Crosman production of "The Merry Wives," playing a Western town recently, was billed minus any reference to Shakespeare, the company manager naturally wanted to know why. "Sh-h-h!" from the house man, "I don't want nobody to get on to it."

DOWNTOWN DRAMA HOLDS TO GOOD MIDSEASON FORM AS DAYLIGHT SAVING ENTERS

IT'S MITZI! In ribbons and bows and half hose "The Madcap" comes to the Shubert on Monday. Foil for her pranks is Harry Puck, named for an elf, perhaps, but a good Elk just the same.

IN "FAST COMPANY" is Nan Sunderland, who will come to the Tremont on May 7 as an important part of George Cohan's new farce of that name. It's all about the National Pastime, they say.

A RISING STAR is Marie Callahan of "Good News" at the Majestic. William Wayne gives her a hit. Doesn't William look like Al Smith, though!

WISDOM AND BEAUTY for the role of Portia is an inherent quality of Peggy Wood. In the "Merchant of Venice" at the Plymouth on May 7 she will confound Mr. Shylock in the best manner.

AN IMPISH IMPLICATION is imparted to Hubert Druce's expected announcement to Holbrook Blinn in this bit from "The Play's the Thing" at the Wilbur. Monday's the night when this saucy and sophisticated satire returns to Boston.

HIGH HONORS FOR NIMBLE SPEECH

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

IT is gleaned from news dispatches that Otis Skinner, currently with us in "The Merry Wives of Windsor," has been awarded the distinguished service cross for faultless diction. In many respects it is a happy solution by the American Academy of Arts and Letters of the grave problem of who speaks best and clearest in the great American Theater. There can be no quibbling over the award among the drama's keen pupils. And yet one endowed with sufficient native courage might inquire why Mr. Skinner should have been called upon to wait for compensation until after the American Academy had first poured its soothing balm upon Walter Hampden and Edith Wynne Matthison.

ANY gracious honor tilted upon the artistic brow of Otis Skinner may be taken as something more than a popular gesture. There will be no dissension among those of the faithful who have acclaimed the theater in storm and stress and have proved themselves unyielding patriots in an age of tottering arts. Mr. Skinner has earned his medal. Only its delay in arriving has driven some of us to wonderment and interrogation.

IT may be assumed that the American Academy, etc., found itself pressed with an Herculean task, for no contest is without its clamoring aspirants—or, shall we say, its prospective field. Any artistic arena is crowded with runners-up and dark horses. As alternates for special honors always are accepted as being fairly within the range of artistic sport, this department begs to present its own candidates for the next national Marathon in clean and precise speaking.

CONTRARY to a somewhat growing impression that good diction is a fading art among American actors, two sturdy candidates for the 1929 finals may be suggested. They are Holbrook Blinn and Arthur Byron. If the determining quality of acting is to be pinned upon diction, how may a set of judges, lay or technical, turn a cold eye upon these excellent gentlemen? Both are good Americans. Mr. Blinn having been born in San Francisco and Mr. Byron in the less romantic city of Brooklyn. Both have given years of faithful effort to the theater and both have added to its lustre as they strutted its uncertain boards. From juvenile frivolities to mellowed maturity they have plodded faithfully and well.

AS the hero of the American Academy's classic must possess diction well beyond that of his fellow player, no one will doubt the wisdom of nominating Otis Skinner as the 1928 champion. It is a popular decision. However, it should be insisted that both Holbrook Blinn and Arthur Byron must have been dangerous contenders in the semifinals.

So Piquant

IRENE BORDONI, chic and charming, will bring "Paris" to the Wilbur on Monday, May 7.

Day by Day in Every Way

By Mitzi, Star of "The Madcap"

Much has happened in the last year that I could dwell upon in my connection with "The Madcap," which — as hence-comes direct from Broadway to the Shubert. But the most striking thought of the moment is that after a whirlwind tour of the Coast and back to New York — fifty-six unbroken weeks to date — I haven't missed a performance.

Yes, I am proud of this company. We're a sturdy crew. My own health is disgustingly good, and somehow I generally draw people strong as horses into my companies. But there have been many times during all these performances of "The Madcap" that all of us wished we could have quit a show or two.

Mitzi

Much of my steadiness as a performer I owe to the late Henry W. Savage, who was my manager when I first came over here. More or less a child then, I had been the little pet around the theater in Budapest and Vienna. Besides, according to our repertoire system, I never played every night in the week. Naturally, when I first came here and was told I'd have to play eight performances a week, I thought it was an outrage. When Mr. Savage gave me my part in "Sari" I asked, "Where is my alternate?"

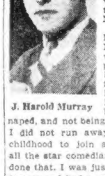
But Mr. Savage was already for that. When I came across his path he had spent twenty years in the theater dealing with opera stars and other "artistes" so temperamental that he was well fed up with the whole business. He fixed his cold New England eyes upon me and said, "There will be no alternate—you play every performance a week or none at all. And that was that.

So Pensive

ALICE DAY provides ample fascination for William Haines in "The Smart Set" at the Orpheum.

MURRAY IS HOME BOY

He is a native of Maine, where Neal Dow stirred up memorable commotion about "hard stuff"; many years before he was born; he is J. Harold Murray, whose voice rings clear and true in Ziegfeld's "Rio Rita," which comes to the Colonial on Monday, May 7.



J. Harold Murray

"It was at South Berwick," says Mr. Murray, "of which you probably never heard, that I first saw the light. I was the husky small boy to be kidnaped, and not being a star comedian, I did not run away from home in childhood to join a circus. Nearly all the star comedians claim to have done that. I was just a normal small towner and had to work hard. When 14 I was big and strong enough to lug heavy trunks up and down stairs as a porter at the famous Old Orchard Beach Hotel. This was fine physical culture. I now play golf and swim and do the usual things which seem tame after early experience, for I never went in for strenuous athletics."

The jocular and amiable Murray is a most agreeable variation from the effeminate type of singer in some musical plays. He is vividly masculine.

Looking Ahead

MAY 7—
George Arliss in "The Merchant of Venice" at the Plymouth.
"Rio Rita" at the Colonial.
"Fast Company," a new George M. Cohan play, at the Tremont.
Irene Bordoni in "Paris" at the Wilbur.
"Dimmie's Women" at the Hollis.

MAY 21—
Walter Hampden in repertoire at the Plymouth.
Eva Le Gallienne in repertoire at the Hollis.

HONOR OF THE FAMILY

CLINIC FILM AT FENWAY

"Motherhood," a much-discussed picture, which will have special showings for people over eighteen at the Fenway, beginning today, was produced with the co-operation of Rockefeller, Bellevue and Allied Hospitals of New York. It shows how hospitals care for maternity cases.

Since Theodore Roosevelt made his campaign against race suicide among native Americans, the problem, according to statistics, has become intensified to such an extent that in many sections of the nation the vanishing American is no longer the Indian, but the native white.

"In the world over will be found women who live in constant fear of motherhood," says Mrs. Lawrence, sponsor for the picture.

"Analysis of the three great reasons for such fear. The first is economic, the second social, and the third physical.

"As for physical fear, that today is unnecessary and usually unwarranted. A living faith and the untiring efforts of medical science together have crushed this barrier to glorious motherhood."

NEW PICTURES

Two new Cosmopolitan Productions entitled "Dancing Daughters" and "Diamond Handcuffs" are now being filmed at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios. "Diamond Handcuffs" is an original screen story by Carey Wilson and is being directed by J. P. McCarthy. Eleanor Boardman and Conrad Nagel have the leading roles.

Film Futures

MAY 4—
Red La Rocque and Lupe Velez in "Stand and Deliver" at the Metropolitan.

MAY 6—
Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton in "Partners in Crime" at the Olympia, Scollay and Fenway.
Edmund Lowe in "Dressed to Kill" at the Keith-Albee Boston.

MAY 7—
Lon Chaney in "The Big City" at Loew's State.

MAY 11—
Richard Dix in "Easy Come, Easy Go" at the Metropolitan.

WHITEMAN IS AGAIN AT THE "MET"

Paul Whiteman, the "Barnum of Bandland," now returns to the Metropolitan. His world-renown group of musicians are presented in the most pretentious public stage revue yet devised. It is the Whiteman custom to present a program in concert style, using members of his orchestra in specialties. Exclusive time his admirers are treated to an entirely different type of entertainment. Gorgeous girls, dazzling dancers and lavish scenes, plus the one and only Whiteman band, make up a truly sensational theatrical spectacle. Many new Whiteman melodies are introduced, along with some of the old favorites, such as "Rhapsody In Blue," and others too well known to need introduction. H. H. Rutnalde, the creator of many of theaterland's greatest stage successes, has produced this revue for Whiteman.

Paul Whiteman

On the screen Metropolitan patrons see Harold Bell Wright's story of the Ozarks, "Shepherd of the Hill," a drama of emotions among the Arkansas mountain folk. A good cast is headed by Alec B. Francis and Molly O'Day. One of the outstanding features of this film is its pictorial beauty. The photography was "shot" by artist-camera men in the heart of the Arkansas-Missouri Ozarks, one of the most beautiful, picturesque, wildest and grandest territory in America.

WOLHEIM-MEIGHAN

Louis Wolheim, the ex-college professor who first came to stage stardom in the legitimate Broadway production of "What Price Glory," will be Tom Meighan's principal support in his new production, "The Racket," to be made from the season's stage success. Meighan has the role of police captain, and Wolheim will be the outstanding crook.

END OF THE SEASON AT SYMPHONY

By MOSES SMITH

Another musical season has gone by and one can again write "Finis." For this week's symphony programs are the last of the series, and although there will be a few sporadic concerts for a month yet, the heart of the musical goings-on—that is, the concerts of the Boston Symphony Orchestra—has gone dead. Monday evening the famous "Pops" concerts will begin under Alfredo Casella, and a new cycle will have begun.

It is a useless attempt to appraise the worth of this season's concerts under Mr. Koussevitzky. But one thing has been obvious and outstanding—the development of the orchestra to a point where its performance rivals the band in Dr. Muck's day. This last program bears testimony to the virtuosity of the orchestra, but there have been even more brilliant concerts earlier in the year.

The program had something to please everybody, which is probably what Mr. Koussevitzky attempted to do at his leave-taking. For the "old-timers" there was Beethoven's overture to "Egmont," marvelously interpreted and played. For the novelty-seekers there was a Scherzo by a contemporary Russian, Nikolai Lopatnikoff. This piece, which was being given for the first time anywhere, served to introduce a composer who wrote lightly, deftly, avoiding profundities. The Scherzo pleased on first hearing, but that one audition probably exhausted its possibilities for the listener.

French impressionism had an inning with Debussy's "La Mer," not too sympathetically interpreted by Mr. Koussevitzky. Nor are these three sketches among Debussy's masterpieces. But the second half of the program, Berlioz' second symphony in D major, was another matter. On it the conductor could lavish his most loving attention. And so an audience which had arisen with the men of the orchestra to the departing conductor with a sense of duty stayed to cheer him after the jubilant finale of the symphony.

DISCIPLES DEFECTION

FAILURES in the hour of need, Joseph Schildkraut and Ernest Torrence as Judas and Peter respectively, abandon the Master in Gethsemane's Garden, "King of Kings" at the Colonial.

ROGUISH ROMANCE

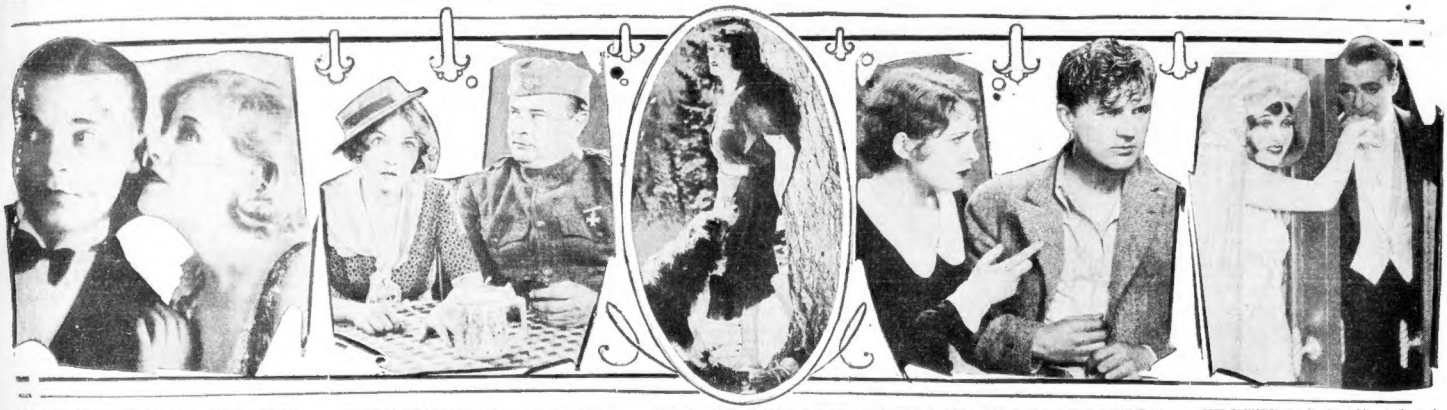
TWO'S COMPANY, but it all depends on the kind of company. Holmes Herbert, we suspect, is about to play the boob. And Audrey Ferris, maybap, plays HIM for one in "Silver Slave," Modern.

STAGE AND SCREEN

With Words and Music
Henry De Forest and Sam Savasta, "praise agent" and pianist respectively at the Keith-Albee Boston, have written the lead song for the theatre's "Follies" show. It is called "I Almost Understood You." And we have lost caste by innocently asking if it is supposed to be sung in dialect.

The Skeleton Jiggles
Ring Lardner, whose "You Know Me, Al," stories everyone knows, has written a baseball comedy called "Fast Company," which George Cohan will produce at the Tremont a week from Monday. But everyone does not know that Mr. Lardner was formerly sports editor of this newspaper.

GAYLY SKETCHED ARE THE FLIPS AND FLIRTS IN WEEK'S NEW FLICKER OUTPUT



"DON'T SHOUT," murmurs Neil Hamilton to Esther Ralston, "I can hear you perfectly; I wear Dr. Whitfeetree's invisible ear muffs and am cured as a ham." This occurs, if at all, in "Something Always Happens" (Boston).

SLIGHTLY SKIFFERED is Zazu Pitts in "Buck Privates" at the Scollay. This, girls and boys, is the price of too much Laughing Soup. Eddie Gribbon, from the tank corps, takes longer to get tanked.

MOLLY O'DAY is shown here preferring the society of Towser to that of her other dumb friends. "Shepherd of the Hills," new film at the Metropolitan.

AFTER A HARD DAY at the perfume counter Larry Kent has to come home to this! His wife has the nerve to ask him what he did with his week's pay. Billie Dove showing "The Heart of a Follies Girl" (Olympia).

THE COWARD does it with a kiss, as the poet says. And as it's Lowell Sherman doing the kissing, well—did you ever know him to play the hero? Corinne Griffith in "The Garden of Eden" (State).

MUSIC HATH CHARMS FOR THE CINEMA

By LEO GAFFNEY

DURING the last two years sounding motion pictures have been stewing below the surface. Now a few things are swimming to the top. The ripple first caused by Vitaphone has increased by ever widening circles. There are other sounding devices neither dissimilar nor inimical to Vitaphone. All of them, it seems, are working for a common end—the conversational and musical cinema. The latest development is Firnatone, an invention by the Victor Talking Machine Company. Firnatone, in a word, will provide a movie exhibitor with a special musical accompaniment made into a record synchronized with the film. The idea being to sell a can of music with each can of film.

WHILE the new device ought to be a boon to the small houses, it can hardly distress the Metropolitans, the Keith-Albee Bostons or the Loew's States—where the pipe organ contributes so much to the show. But deep in Hicksville, where the Town Hall shows "movin' pitchers" one, two or three nights a week, Firnatone is going to knock some plunk into the freckled boy who pumps for the mechanical piano. What becomes of the awful piano sound concerning no one who has ever suffered under it. Thus do the movies, with Mr. Chesterton, make progress by leaving things behind them.

ANOTHER bit of fairly fresh film news is the rumor that henceforth it may be Sir Charles Chaplin that flings the custard. Everybody knows that Chaplin is proud that he is an Englishman, and everybody in England seems proud of it, too. Sir Harry Lauder was knighted, they are saying, and Sir Beerbohm Tree. Why not Chaplin? Gloria Swanson is a marquise, Vola Negri was a countess and now a princess, Kathleen Norris has dubbed Mary Pickford "Princess Mary of America." May we not soon expect Lord Douglas Fairbanks, Lady Norma Talmadge, and the Right Honorable John Barrymore? And would it not be fun to have Greta Garbo fly to the waiting arms of John, the eighth Earl of Gilbert? And how about Signor Bull, Il Duce of Montana? Why not?

WE could continue in this supposed-to-be plaintive vein right down to the end of this column and even tromp up a little more wise-cracker about tin-Tin putting on the dog and things like that, but for the fact that this is really a serious discussion. To prove it, there is the word of Professor Ernest Bernhardt-Kabisch of Columbia University who describes the great ones of Hollywood as the "aristocracy of democracy." This terrific bit of phrase turning comes almost too suspiciously close to plunking the nail squarely on the head!

WHEN the Fairbanksean, Mary and Doug, visited Europe last time, the famous fifty million Frenchmen all tried at the same time to see "Princess Mary" get into a taxicab. In Berlin a German audience sang "The Star-Spangled Banner" for the first time since the war, while Doug stood up on the stage and (in German, if you please) told the multitude that he was just Herr Pickford for the evening. Knighthood then for Mr. Chaplin? Certainly but we fail to see how it will add one inch to his stature over here. Nevertheless, it is pretty good for a little fellow who once played a fiddle in the London streets to support his mother.

LOCAL SHOW AT BOSTON

For the first time since the opening of the theater, the Keith-Albee Boston is going to stage an "all local follies show" beginning tomorrow. The talent for the show was secured with the co-operation of the Dolan-De Petro Theatrical Studios. The "Follies" are made up of over fifty talented boys and girls from greater Boston and its suburbs. Dancers, singers and comedians galore have been rehearsed to make the follies an ideal evening's entertainment.

Gertrude Dolan-De Petro

Gertrude Dolan-De Petro is directing wonderful morsel "Waverly Drake," which has become popularized just recently, is done with a chorus of thirty boys and girls. Every movement of this intricate dance has been carefully rehearsed by Miss Dolan with the entire ensemble.

A Dutch number has proved itself one of the outstanding "hits" of the rehearsals and should prove a most pleasingly good effect upon the audience.

The costumes are blended with the various dancing effects with pastel shade and stage settings. William E. Thurston, the orchestra leader of the theater, assigned the music.

Ralph Roberts Is Real Hero of "The Wrecker"

"The Wrecker," E. E. Clive's latest success at the Copley, continues to be the vehicle in which Keith Roberts places himself on a plane with the finest comedians on the American stage for virtue of his excellent portrayal of "Sweet," a boxer who Hickman on the lam for months. Through the play's development of mystery he announced that his work in providing comedy has been responsible for his role to strain from the audience.

Ralph Roberts

Besides being exceptionally funny, Mr. Roberts does some character acting which vies with the best performances in "The Wrecker" have earned him a large place in the hearts of the Copley fans.

Mr. Roberts, incidentally, is making his success far away from the place where he was born. Shikaiser, India, is where he first saw the light of day.

In that far off country, his dad, Lieut.-Col. John Roberts, was the military commander of an English outpost.

HAYES CONCERT

Roland Hayes will give his only recital of the season in America when he sings in Symphony Hall tomorrow afternoon at 3:30. The great tenor has just returned from a winter in Europe, and will not sing again until his fifth tour of America, which will begin next October.

New Ballroom Starts the Season at Revere Beach

Spanish Gables at Ellett Circle, Revere Beach, is now open.

The new ballroom is the only one of its kind in the country. It was designed by Herbert N. Ridgway, who was formerly an owner of the Nautical Garden ballroom. The Spanish Gables is even more beautiful than the Nautical.

The foyer and lounge rooms are finished in craftex with rugs on the floor, big comfortable chairs, floor lamps, table lamps and beautiful hangings.

On the floor above is the Spanish patio. The promenades is decorated with hangings on each window and cushioned seats around the entire building. These windows may be opened when the weather is warm.

The patio has a dance floor which is large enough to accommodate 2000 people. This floor is surrounded by individual boxes with a tiled roof covering each box.

Hundreds of Aspirants for Orpheum Frolic

A record number of applications have been filed by ambitious Boston boys and girls seeking to qualify for the coming Loew's Orpheum annual frolic, announced to be staged at this theater the week of May 14.

This extraordinary number of aspirants will be presented by Manager Victor J. Morris to Victor Hyde, well known New York producer, when the latter arrives in Boston next week to begin the arduous task of testing the talents of each individual.

It will be recalled that Mr. Hyde is the Broadway impresario sent here several years ago by the late Marcus Loew to inaugurate this feature, which has been carried out each year ever since.

STAGE AND SCREEN

Absolutely, Mr. Arliss!

George Arliss, coming to the Plymouth in another week to play Shylock in "The Merchant of Venice," was asked if he enjoyed playing wicked characters. "Certainly," he answered, "but there's a difference between enjoying and approving of the people you portray on the stage."

"Among My Souvenirs"

Eva Le Gallienne, soon to appear here in repertory, has a faded rose given her by Sarah Bernhardt. When Miss Le Gallienne was studying in Paris she was taken backstage one day and the Divine Sarah gave her advice and a rose. Needless to say, she has never forgotten either.

THAT ROYLE GIRL 'FIND' OF YEAR

Selena Royle, young, vibrant and beautiful, a rarely gifted girl, born of the theater and for the theater, comes to the Wilbur next week as the new leading woman for Holbrook Blinn in Molnar's sophisticated comedy, "The Play's the Thing." Except for Miss Royle, Gilbert Miller's entire original company and production has been preserved intact for the transcontinental tour and impending trip to London. But Miss Royle has earned a right to her new distinction. She is one of the "finds" of the current New York season—one of the few young and gifted women, this season, to plant her foot firmly on the rung of that mythical ladder all must climb to achieve success.

Selena Royle

Her good fortune was to be cast as the leading woman for Lionel Atwill in the recent production of "Napoleon." The play was a failure but her own performance was outstanding and commented upon in the New York press. Gilbert Miller, seeing her perform in his own Empire Theatre, drafted her services for the return engagement of "The Play's the Thing."

Walter Hampden Learns Trade in the Right Place

Walter Hampden, who will come to the Plymouth in repertoire on May 21, has won his spurs as the dominating exponent of romantic and classic drama in the hard, but practical, school of experience.

His progress while fighting for artistic recognition from the commercially inflated temples of the theatrical world is now a matter of stage history. But with a tenacity characteristic of the race from whence he sprang, he "kept right on to the end of the road" and triumphed.

At a comparatively early age he went to France and there to England where he became a member of the F. R. Benson, Stratford-on-Avon-Players, an organization that has done more to perpetuate the plays of Shakespeare than any other society in the world. During his three years' association with this company he played over 70 different roles in the various plays.

Maurice Schwartz to Play at Grand Opera House

The eminent artist Maurice Schwartz and his Yiddish Art Theater Company will appear at the Grand Opera House next week and will render his New York success, "Americaner Chasidim."

Mr. Schwartz has just closed the run of this play in the metropolis at the height of its success in order to start his tour of the United States upon the Yiddish speaking stage in order to make preparations for his debut upon the English speaking stage, next season.

"Americaner Chsidim" is a rollicking, satirical comedy of the American brand of traditional Judaism and especially of Chsidim in the New World. It is as grotesque an anachronism as a caravan of camels in a city of subways and motor cars.

BASEBALL FILM

Claude King has just been assigned to appear in Richard Dix's next picture, "Knocking 'Em Over," a baseball picture. King will take the part of the wealthy owner of a ball club.

"MAGNIFICENT FLIRT"

Tom Ricketts and Hazel Keener have been added to the cast of Florence Vidor's new picture, "The Magnificent Flirt," being made by Paramount.

"SIR JOHN FALSTAFF" by OTIS SKINNER

SCHMIDT

Making the most of a bad situation, Otis Skinner permits himself to be stuffed into a soiled clothes hamper by the two ladies. The indignant husband, it is discovered, is completely deceived. "The Merry Wives of Windsor" at the Hollis, as seen and sketched by Charlie Schmidt.

"Hassan" to Be Given by Harvard Dramatic Club

The Harvard Dramatic Club is hard at work on its spring production, James Elroy Flecker's "Hassan," to be produced May 9, 10 and 11 at Brattle Hall, Cambridge, and later at the Repertory Theatre of Boston. Because of the importance of two feminine characters in "Hassan," the club is forced to introduce feminine players. Francesca Braggiotti will have a dancing role and Mary Crandon will enact another principal part.

Mary Crandon

In staging "Hassan," the Harvard players have turned their attention to an Oriental drama that is centered around Haroun Al-Raschid, the Caliph of Bagdad. By special arrangement with the Harvard English Department, Frederick C. Packard, '20, assistant professor of public speaking, is to direct the production.

New Farce Premier Staff Testimonial

Arrangements have been completed to have the opening performance of the hilarious farce, "Jimmie's Women," at the Hollis Street Theater on Monday evening, May 7, given as a testimonial to Manager Joseph Cook. Vincent Fetherstone and Paul Spillane of the house box office staff.

Few are the regular theatergoers of Boston who have not had intimate acquaintance with Mr. Fetherstone. This is his 38th season at the historic and popular playhouse, and in length of service he is the dean of Boston's theater box office men.

VARIETY AND PICTURES

BOWDOIN SQUARE—Gilda Gray in "The Devil Dancer," and the stage attraction, "Harry Ingalls' Checker Girls'" revue.

HOWARD—(Burlesque) Mike Sacks and "The High Flyers" revue. Also pictures and vaudeville.

Berlin Writes for Jolson

By LOUELLA PARSONS

LOS ANGELES, Calif., April 28—I just knew that the movies would get Irving Berlin sooner or later. He was out here too long not to be influenced by the sirenic urge of the silent drama. Berlin will write the musical theme for "The Singing Fool," Al Jolson's next picture, and may be you think Al Jolson isn't sidestep.

Think of having an Irving Berlin musical score. Warners can count on me for a front seat in the theatre for I admit I am a Berlin fan.

The Berlin-Jolson combination does not extend alone to the screen. The energetic composer has written the next Jolson stage play and is calling it "Mister Bones." It's a story of a minstrel man.

THERE'S an old-saying you can never tell where lighting will strike. That ancient wheeze certainly applies to the film business. You can never tell when an unknown is to be boosted right into the limelight. Only last week Charles Francis Coe, author of "Me, Gangster," was waiting that he hadn't seen an actor in Hollywood that he could see in his story.

Then he and Raoul Walsh, in search of food, not talent, lunched at the Montmartre. A blonde youth sat at a table nearby. Inquiries brought the information that he was Donald Lowe, Harvard College boy and athlete. A test was made of him. He looked as good in celluloid as he did in real life. Result: Young Lowe agreed to give up his athletics and go in for a screen career—via the Fox gates.

Wilson Mizener, who seems to be general advisor at the Fox company, suggested that the name Lowe is too unromantic and offered in its stead Donald Strange. Shades of our romantic novels.

NEW YORK loves to take part in all these debutante visits of Hollywood stars. True, there are not many of them who haven't been in New York, but when we occasionally hear of one of the younger members of the Hollywood fraternity who goes to New York without having been there previously a shout of joy goes up and all the newspapers feature the star's naive bewilderment at the skyscrapers and subways.

Janet Gaynor hasn't been in New York since she was a little child in pinafores. Now that she is a great star she is going to give New York a treat. She leaves by way of Panama Canal within the next ten or fifteen days after she finishes in "Four Devils."

At the same time F. W. Murnau will pack his loaz and set out for the big town. Mr. Murnau will spend his vacation abroad and New York is only the first stop for him.

"Good News" Leading Man Has Risen from Ranks

From a place on the program of a motion picture house as a spot light singer to a principal of "Good News," now at the Majestic, has been the career of Don Lanning the youthful Tait College football captain, in this popular entertainment. Lanning was born in East Liverpool, O., of old fashioned Methodist parents, whose one ambition for their young hopeful was to have him enter the ministry. But Don had other thoughts and, when he confronted his father and mother with his idea of a career that of the theater, they objected so strenuously that he left home. From Liverpool, O., he went to Chicago, where his youthful voice won for him a job as a singer in a motion picture house when those emporiums used the spotlight singers to break up the monotony of continuous pictures.

FEAR RICHARDS WAS SLAIN BY GANGSTERS

New York, April 28 (INS)—Grave fears that Ralph Richards, brother of Vincent Richards, tennis star, was slain by gangsters on whose friends he had squealed, was expressed by federal agents today.

Richards escaped from the custody of city detectives, prohibition agents and a deputy United States marshal on April 18, and has not been heard of since.

Richards, who had been in difficulties with the police before, was arrested last month in Westchester County on charges of impersonating a prohibition agent to collect bribes. Bail was fixed at $40,000 and in default of it he was sent to the Tombs.

There he appeared willing to aid the authorities in rounding up the gang of which he was alleged to be a member, and he was frequently taken out of the prison in search of criminals. It was on an expedition of this nature that he was taken out last week, in custody of Deputy Marshal Pinkley, two prohibition agents, three detectives, and one policewoman.

Richards, the authorities said, was to meet two fellow conspirators at a house on West 74th st., and three more at a hotel a short distance away, the group then setting out to take down speakeasy proprietors. Richards was to lead his unsuspecting fellows into a trap. For this purpose, five additional detectives were stationed at the hotel which was to be Richards' second stopping place.

That was the scheme to which Richards had agreed with the authorities. Whether he hoodwinked his captors in a plan for his own escape or whether he was captured by former companions and murdered, they are unable to learn.

CHICAGO PATROLMAN SLAIN BY HOLDUP PAIR

Chicago, April 28 (AP)—Patrolman Arthur Esau was shot dead by drug-store robbers, eighth police victim of gunmen bullets here since Jan. 1 and the fourth this month. Esau stepped into a North Clark st. drug-store in civilian clothes to make a purchase. Two men who were holding up the place whirled and shot him before he could even reach for his weapon.

FULLER SIGNS $4,500,000 SPRINGFIELD WATER BILL

Springfield, April 28 (AP)—Word was received here today that Governor Fuller has signed the Springfield water bill, which allows this city to borrow $4,500,000 to finance the construction of a huge dam at Cobble Mountain, on the present Little River water system, which will vastly increase the water storage capacity. The development will include a hydroelectric plant.

FULLER PLANTS TREE ON STATE HOUSE LAWN

While the rain fell steadily, Governor Alvan T. Fuller, wearing a yellow slicker, observed Arbor Day today by planting a white spruce on the lawn of the west wing of the State House.

In the presence of a number of prominent persons, the Governor dug a hole and planted the tree, which he dedicated to the late Prof. Charles Sprague Sargent, father of Arnold Arboretum.

The planting was preceded by brief exercises in the Governor's office, at which were present William C. Endicott, chairman of the memorial fund executive committee for the endowment of the arboretum; Mrs. S. V. R. Crosby, Henry S. Hunnewell, Ernest H. Wilson, keeper of the arboretum, and Mrs. Guy Lowell, daughter of the late professor. The Governor extolled Prof. Sargent as the greatest authority on trees in the world.

Black Rain in Poland Feared as a Sign of Epidemics

Warsaw, Poland, April 28 (AP)—The phenomenon of "black rain" has been observed at Cracow and elsewhere in Southern Poland and the superstitious today were excited and feared it was a forerunner of epidemic and a bad harvest.

Similar phenomena were observed in Bessarabia and Northern Rumania and attributed to lava dust from the Balkan region which has been shaken by earthquakes.

It was assumed in Warsaw that this dust had been blown to Poland and precipitated by mixing with rain. Some authorities said it might have been floating in the atmosphere for months and might have traveled a great distance.

FORD TO FORM HUGE ACCEPTANCE COMPANY

New York, April 28 (AP)—The New York Times today says that powerful financial interests connected with the Ford Motor Company and its banking affiliations are forming a finance company, patterned along the lines of the General Motors Acceptance Corporation, for the sale of Ford cars on credit.

Word received in Wall Street was that Ford would make a formal announcement of the new company within a week or ten days, The Times says.

SPECTACULAR CELLULOID FIRE IN CAMBRIDGE

Tons of celluloid burned today in a spectacular fire in the yard of the Library Bureau factory, Albany st., Cambridge.

Two alarms were sounded as the flames licked the building. Firemen saved it with a water screen after one side was scorched.

Employes of the factory, including many girls, had just left for the Saturday half holiday when the fire broke out.

Flames were shooting more than 100 feet in the air when firemen reached the scene and from a distance it appeared as if the entire factory district near the river was ablaze.

DRAPE WRANGEL'S COFFIN WITH IMPERIAL COLORS

Brussels, Belgium, April 28 (AP)—With his coffin covered with the Russian imperial colors, Baron Peter Wrangel, leader of a vain fight against the Bolsheviks several years ago, was borne to a temporary grave today. Lived 2 Weeks on 15 Cents Died Worth a Fortune

Philadelphia, April 28 (AP)—When he was alive Paul Schelley, 79, wore old clothes held together with string and wire, did without socks, neckties and handkerchiefs and shaved himself with a knife and tallow soap. He seldom spent money.

People thought him queer. Soon after his wife died, 25 years ago, neighbors almost forgot his name. They were used to calling him "the miser." He often boasted:

"For 15 cents I can make a wash boiler of soup that feeds me for a couple of weeks."

Recently he died.

In a dilapidated safe police found $20,000 in faded currency, stocks and bonds worth about $200,000, and mouldy deeds to valuable real estate.

Behind pictures other stocks and bonds were found, and pinned to the back of a five-year-old calendar on the kitchen wall police found an additional $300 in bills.

STATE OVERRIDES LYNN ON GARAGE LICENSE

State Fire Marshal George C. Neal has revoked the license granted by the Lynn City Council to the Earl P. Reynolds' Service to erect a 90-car garage at 14 Lakeview ave., Lynn. In his decision Marshal Neal stated that the license would be a source of annoyance to the occupants of adjacent residences, a detriment to the best interests of the property owners in the vicinity of the intended garage, and against the welfare of the community.

BOY BITES HIS TONGUE; DYING

Batavia, N. Y., April 28 (INS)—Efforts of surgeons to stop the deadly seepage of blood from a wound caused when little four-year-old Richard Feary bit his tongue five days ago have failed so far, they announced today. Unless some new method can be devised to force coagulation the boy will die.

Seven stitches were taken when the deadly seepage continued, and four transfusions failed to effect coagulation. The lad is still conscious and plays with his toys at the St. Jerome hospital here.

BOY DROWNS, SECOND FROM SAME FAMILY

Agawam, April 28 (AP)—Called from her home by the screams of a 14-year-old son, an Agawam mother rushed out to see her two-year-old boy lying lifeless on the ground after being drowned.

It is the second time in two years that this mother, Mrs. Michael O'Brien, has been called to such a scene. Two years ago another son, 10, lost his life in the Agawam river, which flows a short distance in front of the home.

TO UNVEIL AIR STATUE GIFT TO FRANCE MAY 8

Concord, N. H., April 28 (AP)—A stone statue representing "Conquest of the Air," the work of Georges Michel, French sculptor who died in 1924, and the gift of Robert Jackson of this city to the French nation in commemoration of the departure of Nungesser and Coli and the arrival of Lindbergh will be unveiled May 8 at Le Bourget Aerodrome, Paris, it was announced here today.

GOV. MOODY OPPOSED TO SMITH NOMINATION

Austin, Tex., April 28 (AP)—Governor Dan Moody has declined to seek a place among the eight Texas delegates-at-large to the Democratic National Convention at Houston.

"I am not a supporter of Governor Smith, am opposed to his nomination and have no place among his supporters," the youthful Texas governor said. "I feel certain this state will not go for Governor Smith in the primaries May 5, and if it should the place belongs to someone else."

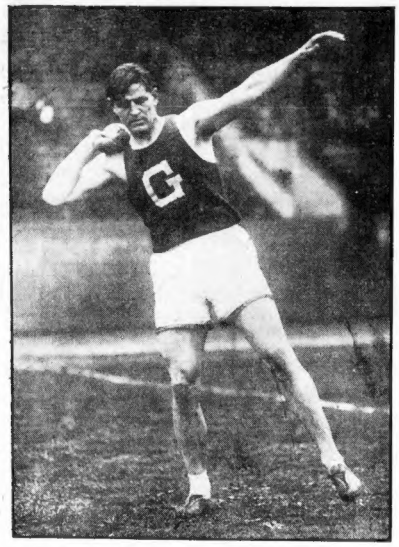
National Stars Compete at Penn Carnival Today



SAILS FOR NEW GLORY. Glenna Collett, American golf star and former national champion, has left for England on the S.S. George Washington to compete in the women's open golf championships. Miss Collett is one of the United States' best golfers.

STEPPING into victory, S. K. Shelton, Yale, on extreme right, shown winning the 120-yard high hurdles at the Penn relay games. Shelton is an outstanding candidate for the American Olympic team. (I. N. R.)

TONY PLANSKY, above, who led the field in the decathlon at the Penn relay games. He had 3778.7105 points at the end of the first day's events. (I.N.R.)

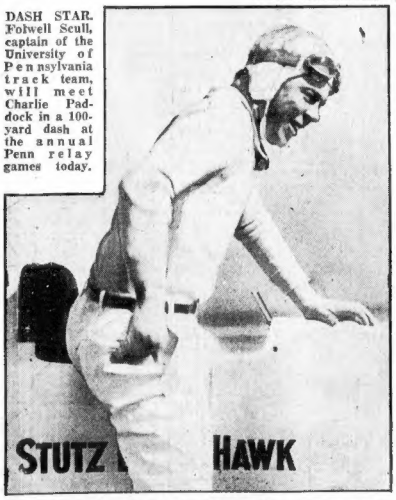
CHESTY INDIVIDUAL. Andrew Charlton, swimming champion, is Australia's hope in the coming Olympic games. Andrew has surprised many by his remarkable endurance. He finishes races without showing any ill effects whatsoever. The Australian webman attributes his staying powers to his wonderful chest development. He may be right at that.

YANKS ARE MARCHING to another American League pennant is the opinion of many now that Urban Shocker, above, has come to terms. Shocker is one of the few spitball pitchers left in the league. He was a holdout, but after several conferences finally signed.

—International Newsreel Photo

DASH STAR. Folwell Scull, captain of the University of Pennsylvania track team, will meet Charlie Paddock in a 100-yard dash at the annual Penn relay games today.



A SMILE THAT IS GONE FOREVER. This is one of the last photos that was taken of Frank Lockhart at Daytona Beach, Fla., before he was killed during a speed test on the sand speedway. Lockhart was trying to establish a world's speed record when his car hit a soft spot in the sand. The car capsized, throwing him to his death. His sudden death is being mourned by many.

HIGH, WIDE AND HANDSOME. Kenneth Doherty of the College of the City of Detroit is the birdman pictured above winning the running broad jump at the Penn relay games. Doherty cleared 22 ft. 2¼ in., which, although not a record, was a remarkable performance under the circumstances, as rain had made the takeoff very treacherous. (I.N.R.)

SCHOOLBOY CONFUSION. The above photo gives a good idea of a schoolboy relay race. It shows the boys at the Penn relay games engaged in a one-mile relay for Philadelphia schools. Franklin Field was crowded with stars from all over the East, all eager to make a good showing in these games, which are one of the biggest pre-Olympic tests. There were many meet records set up, but the muddy condition of the track spoiled many performances that might have meant world records had the footing been better. (I. N. R.)

Russell Lloyd of the Navy Sets Record in Hurdles

PLANSKY HAS HARD FIGHT

Injury Forces Berlinger to Withdraw From the Meet

By DAVIS J. WALSH.

Franklin Field, Philadelphia, April 28 (INS)—The field of all-round athletes in the Olympic Decathlon typified as the Pennsylvania relay carnival resumed operations this morning without the presence of Barney Berlinger, Pennsylvania freshman, who defeated Fair Elkins, Harold Osborn and Emerson Norton last winter.

Berlinger, one of the reigning favorites, withdrew because of a leg that was injured in the high jump yesterday, Assistant Coach Robert his trainer, announced.

The scratching of this entry increased the chances of Tony Plansky, ex-Georgetown man; Ken Doherty, Detroit City College, and Tom Churchill, Oklahoma, the Sooners' relays champion, who were running one-two-three in the point score when the event was continued this morning in another downpour of rain.

In spite of liquid condition of the premises, Russell Lloyd, of the Navy, added another feather to his string in winning the 110 metre hurdle event in 16 seconds flat. Lloyd got his first legal Decathlon record yesterday in winning the 100 metre dash in 11 1-5 seconds.

The other best marks in the hurdles were Ray Moncus, New Mexico, 17 seconds; R. L. Todd, Indiana, 16 1-5 seconds; Tom Churchill, Oklahoma, 17 4-5 seconds, and Ken Doherty, Detroit, 17 3-5 seconds.

PLANSKY FALLS BEHIND

As a result of the hurdles, Doherty took the lead over Plansky in the point score, the former having a total of 4515.501, with Plansky in second place at 4174.106. Churchill remained third with 4246.225, while Virgil Elliott, Bethany, moved into Berlinger's vacated fourth position with 4216.657.

Other withdrawals announced were those of Hal Hamilton and Walter Quimby, Dickerson, and W. K. O'Dell, Clemson.

S. Harrison Thomsen, former Princeton man, and R. L. Todd, Indiana, finished in a tie for second place in the 110-metre hurdles, with Moncus fourth and V. Elliott, Bethany, fifth. Plansky was eighth and Plansky ninth.

Plansky's victory in the discus throw with a toss of 126 feet 5¾ inches regained first place for him in the Decathlon standings, while Doherty placing third in the event with a toss of 114 feet 4¾ inches. The corrected point totals of the Decathlete showed Plansky with 5215.7305 against Doherty's 5121.831 for second place.

Churchill got fifth in the discus at 108 feet 8½ inches to raise his point total to 4357.877, with Elliott third position. V. Elliott was fourth at this point with 4342.727.

William Shmidt, Maryland, withdrew from the competition in the seventh.

Cornell reaped its customary harvest in the hammer throw, Norman Wright winning the event at 152 feet 11 inches, beat Don Gwinn of Pittsburg by less than eight inches.

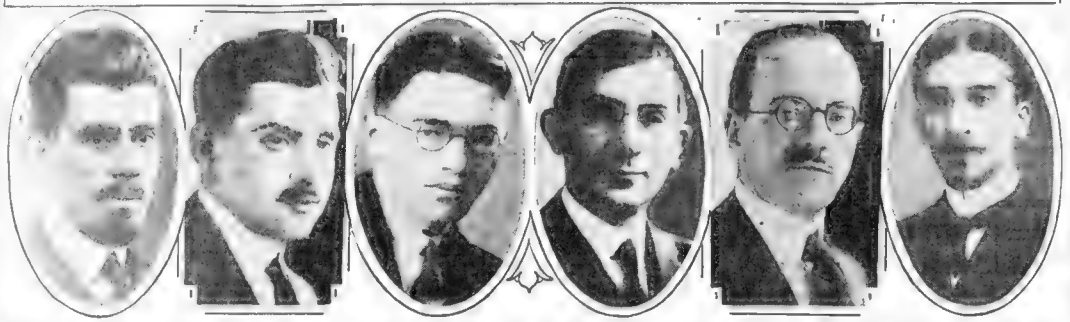
Greater Boston Rabbis Keep Spiritual Idealism Alive



Rabbi Louis M. Epstein, of Temple Kehillath Israel, was formerly at Temple Beth Hamidrash Hagodol. He is known and revered for his scholarship and idealism. His fondest hopes are wrapped in Jewish learning and in development of Palestine.

Rabbi Benjamin Birnbaum was recently called to become the head of one of the oldest Orthodox congregations of Boston, Adath Jeshurun in Dorchester. Rabbi Birnbaum is a young man, but already known for his learning and understanding of the needs of the Jewish community.

Rabbi Irving Miller, installed as the first English speaking rabbi of Chelsea last February. For years Chelsea Jewry had been looking forward to such a call. In his first public utterance Rabbi Miller gave a vivid picture of what he would like to have happen in Chelsea.

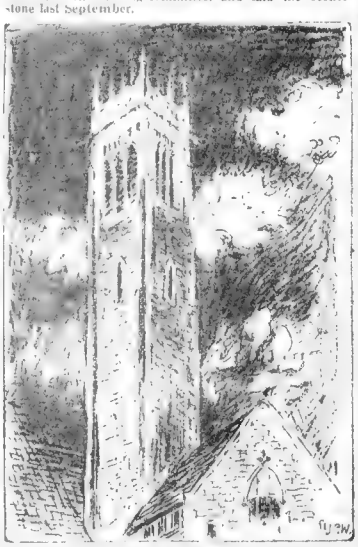
Rabbi Harry Levi, of Temple Israel, with a membership of 750. As a representative of liberal Judaism he stands in the country second only to Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of New York. A new temple and new school are in process of construction.

Rabbi Samuel J. Abrams, of the oldest Jewish congregation in Boston, Temple Ohabei Shalom, 1187 Beacon st. He is much interested in the Jewish art movement. At his temple is the outstanding Jewish students' group and there are boy scouts.

Rabbi H. H. Rubenovitz, spiritual leader of Congregation Temple Tefila, Seaver st., Roxbury. For more than fifteen years he has been identified with Jewish education and Zionism, and he has been especially successful in organizing young people.

PROUD OF NEW CHURCH

The stately Gothic church, costing a third of a million dollars or more, nearing completion in Quincy Center, owes its erection to many friends, but perhaps more to the two Hayward sisters than to any others. Miss Laura and Miss Cora Hayward have already contributed a splendid new organ, and their generosity sufficed to complete the half-finished tower which now stands aloft the city as its most beautiful object. Ernest W. Branch, standing with the Hayward sisters, is chairman of the Bethany Congregational Church building committee, and laid the corner stone last September.



This attractive tower rises above the new Bethany Congregational Church, Quincy, Massachusetts. Especially beautiful is the glistening white structure which forms the upper section and which contrasts with the remainder, which is Quincy seam faced granite. This magnificent new Congregational Church adds another architectual jewel to Quincy's civic circle, containing two schoolhouses, a library, court house, and The Church of the Presidents—Unitarian. A new City Hall and auditorium is the next in order.

WHY MOULD STANDARD?

By L. LAMAR MATTHEWS

EMMIE was writing a short story for her English teacher. That is, she set out to write the story for her teacher; but before she was half through she was writing it for the sheer joy of weaving a fascinating yarn and setting it down on paper. The girl was blessed with a vivid imagination and a flair for expressing her thoughts; so of course she found pleasure in composition.

When the story was finished she read it aloud to the homefolks. Mother was immensely pleased at her daughter's originality and her lilting, whimsical grace of expression. She made two or three minor criticisms which the young author cheerfully accepted. Then Emmie re-copied the story and took it to school with a high heart and a glow of satisfaction.

Emmie's triumph was short-lived. Miss Pettus, her teacher, did not care for originality. She did not like Emmie's style. There was nothing about that story that suggested Miss Pettus' teaching. She had told her pupils how to begin a short story; how to develop the plot; how to introduce the characters; how to end it. She knew a good story when she saw it. Her ambition was to see the work of her class reflect her own prim style. She found nothing to admire in any other kind of writing.

She graded Emmie's story with a low mark, and handed it back to her without any comment whatever. That discouraged the little freshman, and she someow lost interest in her English lessons.

Three months later she had her reward. Doris, a high-and-haughty senior, who sometimes walked to school with Emmie, came running across the street one morning, big-eyed and breathless.

"Professor Graves told us to hand in a short story today and I forgot all about it until this minute," she gasped. "What will I do? Haven't you one somewhere that I can copy, Emmie?"

"Yes, I have one; but it isn't much good. Miss Pettus only gave me 70 on it. You can use it though if you wish."

"Anything will do," declared Doris. "That ogre will be furious if I failed to hand in a paper."

So Emmie ran back home; searched through her writing desk; produced the low-grade story and let Doris have it to copy.

Three days later the senior stopped at her door and waited for the freshman to accompany her to school.

"You saved my life, Emmie," she declared enthusiastically. "Professor Graves gave me ninety on your story. I felt terrible though when he praised my originality and had me read it before the class."

"Then it was a good story after all," said Emmie, "I wonder why Miss Pettus did not like it."

That teacher was exactly like many other teachers and many parents. They can't see beyond their own orderly, well-regulated processes. Whatever differs from their smug opinions is worthless, in their estimation.

There are many young hopefuls struggling vainly to knit from under the personality that teachers or parents are trying to impose upon them.

No two children are exactly alike, and when elders insist upon moulding their thoughts, their efforts their deeds according to pattern youngsters break loose and give troubles. What is the sense in trying to standardize the young?

You probably know of a child whose personality is so vivid, so radiant that he unconsciously attracts notice when he enters a room. Sometimes such children are lucky enough to be let alone. There are parents and teachers in the world who permit their charges to develop their own personality to exercise their own thoughts to preserve their individuality.

Are you that kind?

A MAN FROM DUNLOP CITY MEETS A MAN FROM LOS ANGELES

"Hello, old sport. My name's Treadwell, from Dunlop City. Dunlop City, with its 20,000 acres set aside for industrial development, is 16 times as big as St. Louis, yet only four times as big as Kokomo."

That's nothing. I'm from Los Angeles. Los Angeles is 28 times as big as St. Louis and 75 times as big as Kokomo."

"Well, what of it? Dunlop City, where I come from, brother, is 162 times as big as Duluth, and you know how big Duluth is."

"You ought to come out to Los Angeles, buddy. Los Angeles is 23127/5 times as big as the nearest star, and it would take a fast express train 55 light-years to travel from the center of town to the city limits in Arizona."

"Ah, pish! Dunlop City is 69,000 times as big as your old Los Angeles."

"You're a liar."

"Take that back."

"I won't!"

"You will, too!" (Socko!)

"Now how big is Dunlop City, brother?"

"Dunlop City is 88 times as big as California, yet only one-third as big as Los Angeles."

"That's better."

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Sir:

I am an enterprising washing machine salesman, striving to get along in the world. The other evening I proposed to a wealthy widow, 30 years my senior. Considering my chagrin when, arriving home that evening, I found a telegram announcing the death of my great-uncle, who had bequeathed me $200,000 and his corkscrew manufacturing plant in Cicero, Ill.

Young son of Daddy was there. Daddy was trying vehemently and refused to listen to reason. "All right, then," the last said his sister in exasperation. "Just tell the truth, remember—God an' the devil an' Santy Claus are all lookin' at you."—MISS S. DOUKAS, 221 Lake ave., Manchester, N. H.

By FRANK H. MELOON

Progress of Wired Radio, Inc., will be watched with interest, especially by stockholders, present and potential, of the North American Co. Wired Radio, Inc., is a subsidiary of North American Co. Wired Radio will use Gen. Squier's invention. It will establish its own broadcasting system, using ordinary electric light wires to transmit its programs into the homes. If successful, adoption of the plan by many public utilities is likely to follow.

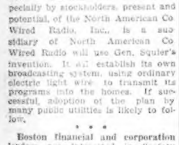
Boston financial and corporation leaders are interested in "safety first." President Charles B. Stront



President Stront. Edward Dana of the Industrial Bank & Trust Co. is enthusiastic on the subject. The same is true of General Manager Edward J. Dana of the Boston Elevated. Both are interested in the big fourth annual spring rally of the Junior Safety Councils affiliated with the Massachusetts Safety Council, held at the Boston Arena today.

"Mr. Dana is one of New England's foremost authorities on "safety first," judging by his achievements in reducing percentage of accidents on the big "L."

I wonder how many know that a Springfield gentleman, originator of the "safety first" slogan, was killed in an accident? He was the victim of an automobile.

A Washington wire says: "Study of brokers' loans situation by Senate Committee has included some attention to the proposition that brokers' loans might be restricted through legislation authorizing Federal Reserve banks to refuse discount privileges to member banks whose loans to brokers were out of proportion to their total loans and discounts.

If the banks were all Federal Reserve members, such a curb might be worked out, though the problem would require tremendous study. As things stand, however, it might actually restrict further growth of Federal Reserve Bank membership.

Another street railway appears headed for the serial story of motion dispatch says directors of Norton, Attleboro & Taunton Street Railway Co. ordered abandonment of the road as soon as arrangements can be made for bus transportation over route. Line is perennially operated.

This is distinctly the opposite of results obtained on a nearby street railway, where Vice-President E. G. Buckland, financial genius of the New Haven, took a hand in showing how a street railway ought to be managed.

There may be little connection between rediscount rates and general business, yet the rate at which money can be borrowed for business expansion can certainly have a big effect. Note Charles M. Schwab's statement that the steel industry is time."

David M. Minton, of Louchelm, Minton & Co., leaves tonight on the Ile de France for a protracted vacation in Europe. He is leaving with strong confidence in the market, for as he declares: "How can you feel otherwise where so many millions of shares have been taken out of the market by the big investment trusts, insurance companies, banks and small investors?"

"The public is saying has been on enormous scale in the aggregate, and is exerting great influence on prices, for most of such stock will not return to the market for a long time. The supply of stock available has been substantially reduced in recent years, and the speculators have to bid prices up in order to induce any selling. The public has become educated to the fact that sound securities representing going concerns are to be had for the inevitable benefit accruing over a period of

Basis of Our Strength

Our Whole Future Depends on More and Better Schools, a Higher Level of Knowledge

Twenty-six million young Americans, the citizens of tomorrow, get their chief preparation for citizenship in the schoolhouse. The "Little Red Schoolhouse" was the beginning of our public school educational system.

It is important that the school be right. We in America have the finest system of free public instruction in the world. We can well be proud of it. Yet when the war draft tested the mentality of our young men we were shocked to find how far short our schooling had fallen.

So the big duty of today is to make the schools better. They can never be too good.

Many of us are accustomed to think that education is mainly for children. Actually it begins at birth and lasts until death. No living person escapes it.

That is not to say, however, that every person gets a due share. One of the great classes in the community whose education has been neglected is that of the parents.

Public School Week, closing today, has shown the parents what the schools are doing for children and pointed out how the parents themselves can help and learn.

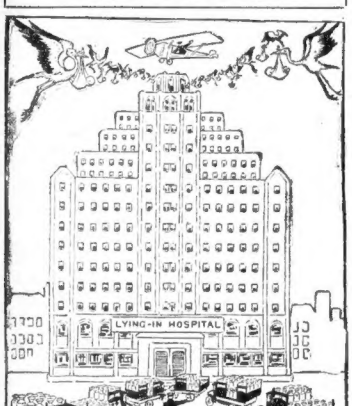
A mass of tested knowledge on child culture has been accumulated in recent years by students of teaching with which many parents are unfamiliar. If they knew it they would enter more zestfully and more effectively into co-operation with the schools and themselves find engrossing new interests in life.

Our public school teachers are doing a marvelous work. They display courage and self-sacrifice. But what we have done in public education in New England and throughout the land, though fine, is not enough. Our whole future depends on more and better schools, more and better teaching, a higher level of knowledge, insight and understanding among our people everywhere.

That is why, as President Coolidge recommends, there should be a Federal Department of Education, with ample funds and a seat in the Cabinet. If military protection is worth two Cabinet seats, surely the paramount protection afforded by education is worth one.

There Are WORSE Homes

The Hospital Baby Gets a Good Start



"I REMEMBER, I REMEMBER, THE HOUSE WHERE I WAS BORN"

Millions of old-fashioned Americans, able to remember days before moving pictures and big headlines made reading "unnecessary," know by heart the old poem by Thomas Hood, beginning:

"I remember, I remember,
The house where I was born,
The little window where the sun
Came peeping in at morn;
It never came a minute too soon
Nor brought too long a day."

The above ingenious picture made for the Survey by Abby E. Underwood is humorously conceived, but it has a serious, important meaning.

A well managed "Lying-in Hospital" is an excellent landing place on this earth for any baby. Those wagons in the picture are carrying PASTEURIZED CLEAN MILK.

Babies that the storks are delivering on the roof are handled on their arrival by nurses that know enough to wash out their eyes and otherwise give them the right start. For all but the very rich, a well prepared maternity hospital is the best CITY TERMINAL for new babies. And many of the very richest mothers go to hospitals when their babies are born.

A room with a window where the sun comes "peeping in at morn" is romantic. But the percentage of baby mortality is high, and so is the percentage of scientific ignorance in the old-fashioned cottage.

HAND SHAKING IN HIGH OFFICE

By DR. FRANK CRANE

MR. COOLIDGE, President of the United States, shook hands steadily for one hour and five minutes, for the benefit of those who could say to the home folks, "Well, I shook hands with the President." There were 2380 of them.

This was some job, even if it was something of a grab and move on affair.

Shaking hands with so many people so rapidly doesn't give a President time to spend many moments with an individual.

President Roosevelt was considered the champion hand-shaker, but President Coolidge has eclipsed him.

Sometime ago, after a hand-shaking spree, he wore bandages on his hands for several days. This time, however, fortunately, no damage was done.

But why the hand-shaking? Of course the purpose is a good one. The President wants to be a good fellow and to show he is not above speaking to a common man.

But anybody with any sense ought to know that, and they ought further to realize that for him even to take a minute off from his official duties to pay attention to the common man would leave him no time for his legitimate work, because there are so many common men.

The President is employed for a specific purpose. He has work to do. He is our hired man and wants to do his job.

But he cannot do this if he is constantly called away from it to be nice to us.

He is supposed to labor with his head and not his hands. We could hire a hand-shaker at two or three dollars a day, but we are paying the President much more for his head work. He ought to be given a chance to do it well.

He might rig up some sort of automaton that would do his hand-shaking for him, or in some other way relieve himself of the hard manual labor engaged in placating the citizens.

Without any desire to have our President "chesty" or stuck up, we insist that he be relieved from the duties of hand-shaking and baby-kissing.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

THERE is an old cemetery in the heart of the city. It is so old that no one cries there any more.

The small, neat trees, which were once planted by trembling hands, have grown to shaggy giants.

Two of them have grown together. Children come and swing from the arch of their mingled trunks. Their small feet scuff the old, quiet ground and raise gay little flurries of dust. They bring their dolls and dishes and play house, there in the hollow.

Sometimes, when it rains a little, they cuddle close between the friendly trunks and peer out with round eyes at the old graves, giggling a little when a rabbit bounces across a tombstone, wiggling his wet tail.

The tombstones lean every way. They have given over the notion of standing stiff and solemn. They are as slouching and untidy now as regular rocks. Some of them are crumbling back into the earth from which they started.

It is springtime now in the old cemetery and great things are doing. Over the sunken graves the vines are taking on new leaves. There is a hurry and bustle of impatient young grass, and yesterday I found a red rose rushing into bloom. You can see that red rose close across the cemetery. It is like a bright, defiant song that the world is whistling to itself as it busies itself with spring.

I wonder how Spring got into the cemetery. Perhaps through the broken walls, although no one ever thought those walls would break when they built them up about the dead. But now, you can almost see the gay creature scrambling over the fallen bricks, pushing her way through the gaps, laughing impudently as she comes.

The great tombs are empty. They were grand tombs in their day. They sat heavily, grimly on top of the earth. As if they would sit there forever. But now they are empty and askew. Chattering birds nest in their eaves. Through their broken walls you catch glimpses of the city —leaping, bright towers—whirling streamers of smoke. Pulsing like a far-off tomtom, you hear the hot beat of the city's heart.

It should seem strange to see those leaping towers through the broken tomb—to hear that hot, eager pulse above the silence of the cemetery. But it doesn't seem strange. Oddly enough, the cemetery seems to be coming near to that other life once more—mingling with it again after its time of sadness.

There is so much going on in the cemetery now that the graves are forgotten. Tombstones crumbling into earth again, grass rooting in their cracks; sweet, young air feeling its way into the graves; birds nesting in their eaves; babies playing under a tree that was once watered with tears. Everything awake once more, now that spring is here. Even the cemetery won't stay asleep.

I suspect God smiles when He looks at the old cemetery and sees those broken walls, those empty graves. We were so sure the walls would never break. We were so sure the graves were filled forever with despair.

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, April 28—Americans who have visited the home of Ralph Barton, the artist, in Paris, will not be surprised to learn he has been offered an enormous figure for the motion picture which he unreels for friends and which he directed, photographed, edited and titled.

It is a movie of the celebrities who have visited the unique mansion Barton and his French wife occupy in Rue Nicolo. And has been fashioned into a three-reel travesty of "Camille," the entire action taking place in a cozy corner of the Barton home.

The chief humor is in the hilarious captions done in the Bertha M. Clay manner. Anita Loos is Camille, and her husand, John Emerson, is Armand. There is a prologue in which Sinclair Lewis offers allegorical studies of Greed, Hate, Love, Fear and so on.

The piece de resistance is the scene in which Sascha Guitry and his wife, Yvonne Printemps, engage in animated conversation with Charlie Chaplin. The Guitrys speak no English and Chaplin speaks no French, but they argue and coo, and it offers a bit of rare artistry.

Chaplin has another scene with Mrs. Ralph Barton, an accomplished pianist and composer, in which they render a piano duet with grave concert air seriousness. Ethel Barrymore "emotes" in a weepy scene following the death of Camille, as do Pauline Starke and Richard Barthelmess.

Alfred Knopf plays a wily Arab desert chieftain, and scarcely needs a makeup. Paul Robeson, the negro actor, is shown in the prologue as Dumas, the author, dashing off his immortal tome between copious flagons of fiery brandy. H. L. Mencken and Joseph Hergesheimer have a ribald drunken scene.

Others moving through the picture are George Jean Nathan, Paul Claudel, Ferenc Molnar, Somerset Maugham, Patsy Ruth Miller and Julis Hoyt. But it is Chaplin who carries off top honors. With forks in two breakfast rolls, he mimics his own splay feet and walk that would stamp him a great comedian without other achievements. Mr. Barton will, of course, not sell the picture, for all artists contributed their services for strictly private production.

THE hostesses employed in the Alice Foote MacDougall coffee houses of Italian and Spanish splendor are not permitted to wear short hair on duty. If the head has been shingled, a switch must be worn. Mrs. MacDougall does not think short hair becoming. From a canvasser of coffee, Mrs. MacDougall has become one of the foremost business women in New York. Her restaurants and coffee salesroom do a gross turnover of more than three millions annually. She applied imagination and romance to a prosaic business and, well, try to get in any of her places at the rush hour.

IT is my conviction most business enterprises skidding into bankruptcy courts flop there as result of a lack of imagination. Woolworth had the cheapest of cheap ideas until he gave it the flame of imagination. The movie is a nickel entertainment idea glorified. The list is endless. As a rule, where you find a drab business you find a drab imagination.

EVERY writer reaches the presumptious stage of attempting to be philosophic. I find myself doing it more and more. And it must be pretty tiresome. Philosophers are born—never made. So don't mind me. Just a fair stab trying to be a little Coloratura.

I HAVE been chuckling all day at a picture in Punch, and five people to whom I showed it never cracked a smile. A tattered, disheveled victim who had just been run over by an expensive car was protesting to the haughty dowager in the back seat. Gazing at him through her lorgnette, she remarked: "One would think you had never been run over before."

OH, THESE WOMEN!

By Leola Allard

A WITHERED old lady sells flowers in front of Carnegie Hall, New York, and while April undoubtedly is doing things to her bones, the dear soul smiles happily. When she hobbles on a cane into the corner drug store for her cup of coffee at noon, the white, starched boys behind the soda counter all want to wait upon her at once. Surely she hasn't beauty, and you wouldn't call her woolen shawl stylish. She is poor and her tip is nothing more than a happy smile and a happy word.

That old lady with the basket of yesterday's flowers never wishes she was someone or something else. The painted young things, who giggle over their double chocolate sundaes, with whipped cream and a cherry on top, look right past the lesson that would do them more good than four years in college.

Katrina, the 15-year-old daughter of Mrs. Medill McCormick, says she supposes she will have to be a politician, because her mother and her father and her grandfather were politicians, but she had much rather be a horse trader.

"Do you know," says Katrina, "mother can beat me at everything except riding horses. She's great at tennis and she is a sure shot, but what she doesn't know about horses—"

Mrs. William Stanton Monroe, well-known throughout the West as a clubwoman and philanthropist, says that being "professional first citizens" is an organized industry among women. Being box holders, patrons and what nat, should, according to Mrs. Monroe, be classed with "big business." It is no mean job.

News from Washington states that Colonel Lindbergh landed there and departed immediately for a "rendezvous." It has the sound of something you know it isn't. He never courts anything but danger; and we suspect he has a best girl some place up in the clouds.
